ART AT HOME

Architects, interior designers, and builders on the intersection of art and design, featuring works from Art Collector Maine

Photography by Jeff Roberts

“The exterior front entry of this home is deep and sheltered, yet open on two sides to expansive views of gardens, fields, and woods. The beauty of this space is its intimacy with the landscape. It is a room that continually changes with the seasons. The building elements echo the surroundings, with the weathered shingles, stone-base columns, and handcrafted wood chairs. Joan Badner’s abstract style creates an interesting juxtaposition against the traditional structure. Many of the colors and forms seen in these two paintings pull from—and seem to change with—the surrounding landscape in all seasons.”
