THE BEST LAID PLANS

THE INSPIRED—AND OFTEN UNEXPECTED—RESULTS WHEN ARCHITECTS CREATE

EDITED BY SUSAN GRISANTI

On the following pages you will find 21 examples of what happens when architects consider their client's style, how they live or work, the site, and the environment. You will witness the essence of the owner's vision for each space and the interpretation of it through the imaginations of Maine's leading architects. Each year we find ourselves awed by the design being created in our state—the use of unexpected materials, structures situated on sites that make one realize there is no better spot, and interior flows that are as planned as they are organic. The 21 projects highlighted in this issue were chosen not only because of the beauty of their designs, the meticulous craftsmanship with which they were built, and their impressive energy efficiencies, but also because each one demonstrates how, when the relationship between owner and architect is a solid one, incredible things happen.
