A screened-in porch is a great place for cutting loose with your style. The porch is about relaxing and reading, hosting friends and serving meals alfresco. It's also a place for paying homage to the outdoor views through architecture and interior design. Here are 10 inviting screened-in porches that get people outside but protect them from insects, sun and moisture.

5. Timeworn Traditional

While this coastal Maine porch by Knickerbocker Group has a contemporary railing and furnishings, its Haint Blue beadboard ceiling lends a traditional touch.
